PETITION FOR REVIEW

IN THE

SUPREME COURT OF CALIFORNIA

Comes now, Marco Marroquin, Petitioner in pro per, and through this verified petition for review requests that this Honorable Court review the denial(s) from the Appellate and Superior Courts as both are without a 'reasoned opinion', semi-post card denials, and relying solely on the commitment offense, past historical events.

Petitioner contends that the denial by the Superior Court was a miscarriage of the intent of the habeas corpus act as the Superior Court appeared to not even read and consider the petition but chose to apply the "some evidence" standard to support the Board's form/rote language for parole suitability denial.

The Superior and Appellate Court fell into the same form/rote language that was applied by the Board, virtually reciting the Board's decision without reading and/or considering Petitioner's claims and the true facts of rehabilitation with his lack of education, his constant efforts to learn, his virtually clean prison record, his family support for returning to his home country of Guatemala (INS hold for deportation, in the record).

As this Court will discover upon a full and fair reading of this petition for review, the lower courts were obligated to consider 'all' issues and not just make a finding based on "some evidence" of past historical events to support the Board's denial and the lack of a nexus to support a current threat level.

In the case of City of Auburn v. Quest Corp., 260 F.3d 1160 (9th Cir. 2001): Under the Supremacy Clause, the state courts are obligated to apply and adjudicate federal claims that were fairly presented to them.

Obviously Petitioner being a lay man at law reasonably believed that the Supremacy Clause in City of Auburn, supra, would apply to the Superior and Appellate Courts as well. As is established in the instant petition for review,

1 CLAIM NUMBER THREE was completely independent of being found suitable for parole
2 by the Board, CLAIM NUMBER SIX, also pertaining to an independent finding by the 3 Board without having to be found suitable was further by-passed by the lower courts
4 in their haste to pass over and avoid review of substantial matters presented.

5 The Superior and Appellate Courts chose to not follow the California and 6 United States equal protection and due process provisions, and, failed to follow
7 U.S. Supreme Court authority as stated in the petition for review.

8 The Appellate Courts assertion that "The record shows that the circumstances 9 of Petitioner's second-degree murder offense "exceed the minimum elements necessary
10 to sustain a conviction" of second-degree murder." Also, "The motive for the 11 offense was very trivial, and petitioner deliberately returned to the bar with 12 a loaded gun and callously shot the un-armed victim.", are without merit.

13 First, the denial of suitability must be based on a 'current' threat level
14 to the public and although, as the appellate court stated, "Denial of parole may 15 be based upon the particular circumstances of the inmate's commitment offense."
16 See below.

17 As the recent Court of Appeals in, In re Scott, 133 Cal.App.4th 573, 34
18 Cal.Rptr.3d 905 (2005) regarding the continuous use of conduct prior to 19 imprisonment wrote:

20 "The Governor's assumption that a prisoner may be deemed unsuitable
21 for release on the basis of the commitment offense 'alone' is correct,
22 (Rosenkrantz, 29 Cal.4th at p.682), but the proposition must be properly
23 understood. The commitment offense is one of only two factors indicative 24 of unsuitability a prisoner can not change (the other being his 'previous 25 record of violence'). Reliance on such an immutable factor 'without 26 regard to or consideration of subsequent circumstances' may be unfair
27 (In re Smith, (2003) 114 Cal.App.4th 343, 372), and 'runs contrary to 28 the rehabilitative goals espoused by the prison system and could result in a due process violation.' (Biggs v. Terhune, 334 F.3d at p.917).
The commitment offense can negate suitability only if the circumstances of the crime reliably established by evidence in the record rationally indicate that the offender will present an unreasonable public risk if released from prison. Yet, the predictive value of the commitment offense may be very questionable after a long period of time. (Irons
v. warden of California State Prison - Solano (E.D. Cal. 2005) 358
F.Supp.2d 936, 947, fn.2)." (Id. at pp.919-920)."

1 Regarding the commitment offense Petitioner committed 15 years ago, this
 2 passage of time was discussed in WEN LEE, 2006 DJDAR 13961, as to Mr. Lee's parole
 3 denial on a conviction of "attempted premeditated murder, and, second degree murder
 4 of Mrs. Soong and two firearm enhancements" in which the Court stated that:

5 "Lee's crimes almost 20 years ago have lost much of their usefulness
 6 in foreseeing the likelihood of future offenses than if he had committed 7 them five or ten years ago. (In re Scott, supra, 133 Cal.App.4th 573,
 8 595]past crime's value for predicting future crime diminishes over 9 time])." (Id. at 13964-13965).

10 The Board's reliance on the commitment offense violates due process because 11 the facts surrounding the offense do not now constitute 'some evidence' with 'some 12 indicia of reliability' of petitioner's dangerousness. Hill, 472 U.S. at 455;
 13 Biggs, 334 F.3d at 917; Irons, 358 F.Supp.2d at 947; Masoner v. State 2004 WL
 14 1080177 *1-2 (C.D. Cal. 2004). (Id. at 816).

15 Under the holdings of Smith (Second District), Scott I & II (First District),
 16 and Shaputis (Fourth District) (Courts of Appeal), the Board's boilerplate findings
 17 that every crime, regardless of the facts, shows an "exceptionally callous 18 disregard for human suffering", and/or committed in a "dispassionate, and/or 19 calculated manner", of "callous manner", cannot be sustained. These criteria 'are'
 20 inclusive in the Board's Matrix thus establishing them as unexceptional.

21 The instant petition before the Court is no more "callous" or "trivial" than 22 the following recent cases from the appellate courts of California. In re Scott, 23 supra, 119 Cal.App.4th at p.891: "All second degree murders by definition involve
 24 some callousness - i.e., lack of emotion or sympathy, emotional insensitivity, 25 indifference to the feelings, and suffering of others". Rather, the inquiry is 26 whether among murders, the one committed by Lee (supra), was particularly heinous,
 27 atrocious or cruel. (In re Ramirez (2001), 94 Cal.App.4th 549, 570, disapproved 28 on another point by In re Dannenberg (2005), 34 Cal.4th 1061, 1082-1083, 1100).
 By that measure, Lee's crimes were more commonplace than egregious."

"Comparing Lee to defendants for whom the Board or Governor properly denied

1 parole because the defendant's crimes were atrocious is illuminating." Rosenkrantz,
 2 29 Cal.4th at p.678; In re Dannenberg, 34 Cal.4th at p.1095; In re McClendon,
 3 (2003) 113 Cal.App.4th 315 at p.321-322; In re Burns, (2006) 136 Cal.App.4th 1318
 4 at pp.1327-1328; In re Van Houten, (2004) 116 Cal.App.4th 339, at pp.346, 351,
 5 366; In re Deluna, (2005) 126 Cal.App.4th 585 at p.593; In re Lowe, 130 Cal.App.4th
 6 1405 at p.1414; In re Morrall, (2002) 102 Cal.App.4th 280.

7 Petitioner contends that, in the above case of WEN LEE and the following 8 case of Weider, the State of California has established what offenses and their 9 circumstances constitute the terminology of "especially or exceptionally callous,
 10 particularly egregious, heinous, atrocious or cruel." WEN LEE, or Weider did not 11 fall under these categories and neither does Petitioner's commitment offense,
 12 because, the language used by the Appellate Court to deny Petitioner a fair review 13 was "callous", and that was no more than what is required for the conviction of 14 the offense.

15 See also, In re Bernard John Weider, Sixth Appellate District Court of Appeal, 16 2006 DJDAR 15795, discussing "callous" disregard for human suffering, where Weider
 17 "took a weapon into a bar, into a public place". "The evidence shows that he was 18 angry and distraught".

19 In a most recent case, which applied Scott dicta: Willis v. Kane, 485
 20 F.Supp.2d, p.1127 (N.D. Cal. 2007) (As cited in Cooper (released on parole 21 8-9-2007): "We agree that Cooper's crime was callous when he beat his wife with 22 a sledgehammer. However, the facts of this case were no more callous than most 23 such offenses and not beyond the minimum for malice aforethought." (See, e.g.,
 24 Smith II, 114 Cal.App.4th at p.367.)

25 CONCLUSION

26 The facts of Petitioner's case establish that he is entitled to a parole
 27 release date (turned over to INS for deportation), that, the Superior and Appellate 28 Courts did not give Petitioner's case proper review and consideration under

1 California and United States due process and equal protection claims.

2 Petitioner asserts that his Psychological Evaluation establishes that he
3 is not a 'current' risk to society. Also see RECIDIVISM study below.

4 RECIDIVISM STUDIES

5 The purpose of this information is to bring to the court's attention of 6 studies done several years ago regarding recidivism rates among inmates that the 7 Board appears to ignore, given the no parole policy due to alleged threat or risk
8 level to the public safety, always used by the Board and/or governor as excuses
9 for parole suitability denials, at the current rate of 99% denials, I submit the 10 following information.

12 "Studies of parole success repeatedly indicate that those who commit murder
13 are among the best parole risks." Allen, Eldridge and Latessa, Vito, Probation
14 and Parole in America, p.254, 1985, citing Niethercut, 1972. Both with regard 15 to the commission of felonies in general and the crime of homicide, no other
16 offender has such a low rate of recidivism. Bedau, Hugo Adams, The Death Penalty 17 in America, 3rd Ed., p.180, n.3, 1980. "Paroled murderers actually present some 18 of the best parole risks." Bedau, Hugo Adams, The Death Penalty in America, 3rd
19 Ed., p.180, n.3, 1980, citing NCCD newsletter, Uniform Parole Reports, 1972, p.2.
20 "Compared with other groups, murderers are actually the best parole risks." Bedau,
21 Hugo Adams, The Death Penalty in America, 3rd Ed., p.180, n.3, citing Stanton
22 p.149, 1969. Two studies indicated that only three (3) in 10,000 and six (6) in 23 10,000 convicted of murder commit another crime. Bedau, Hugo Adams, The Death
24 Penalty in America, 3rd Ed., pp.176-179, 1980. After conducting a study for the 25 California Board of Prison Terms (1983-1987) it was concluded that no one released
26 after committing a murder had been returned to prison for murder. Ellwood, Eldridge
27 T., PH.D, Research Projects On Life Prisoners, p.3, April 1989, California BPT.
28 "As a matter of statistical probability, murderers released from a prison are

1 far less likely to commit a new crime than any other category of offender." Orland,
2 Leonard, Justice, Punishment, Treatment, p.425, 1973. "Many murderers could be
3 released immediately after conviction with little likelihood of offending again."
4 Von Hirsh, Andrew, Doing Justice, Report On The Committee For The Study Of
5 Incarceration, p.126, 1976. These authorities, from some of the most respected 6 sociologists in our country, reveal the fallacy of assumptions regarding the 7 dangerousness of those convicted of murder.

8 In reference to a murder case: Hending v. Smith, 781 F.2d 850 (11th Cir.
9 1986) ["[I]t is a matter of general knowledge that except for professional killers,
10 few people commit more than one murder in a life time. It is a crime involving 11 a specific interpersonal crisis, and not a habitual offense."]; Rosenkrantz, 444

THE COURT:*

The petition for writ of habeas corpus has been read and considered.

The petition is denied. Denial of parole may be based solely upon the particular circumstances of the inmate's commitment offense. The record shows that the circumstances of petitioner's second-degree murder offense "exceed the minimum elements necessary to sustain a conviction" of second-degree murder. (In re Dannenberg (2005) 34 Cal.4th 1061, 1070-1071, 1094 - 1095.) The motive for the offense was very trivial, and petitioner deliberately returned to the bar with a loaded gun and callously shot the un-armed victim.

THE COURT HAS READ AND CONSIDERED DEFENDANTS PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS FILE STAMPED ON 10/24/06, BUT NOT RECEIVED BY THIS COURT UNTIL WEEKS THEREAFTER. IN IT THE DEFENDANT ALLEGES HE WAS IMPROPERLY DENIED PAROLE AT HIS 6/6/06 PAROLE BOARD HEARING. ATTACHED TO DEFENDANTS PETITION IS THE TRANSCRIPT OF THE PAROLE HEARING. IN IT THE BOARD FULLY CONSIDERED DEFENDANTS LACK OF RECORD, GRAVITY OF THE MURDER DEFENDANT COMMITTED, HIS FAMILY HISTORY AND POST-PAROLE PLANS. THE PAROLE BOARD CONCLUDED THAT DEFENDANTS RELEASE AT THIS TIME

WOULD POSE AN UNREASONABLE RISK OF DANGER TO SOCIETY. THIS DECISION IS SUPPORTED BY THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THE CRIME ITSELF AND THE REFUSAL BY THE DEFENDANT TO TAKE FULL RESPONSIBILITIES FOR HIS ACTIONS.

THE DEFENDANTS PAROLE BOARD TESTIMONY MAKES CLEAR THAT HE BLAMES OTHER PERSONS WHO "KIDNAPPED AND ROBBED" HIM THAT NIGHT AND THE VICTIMS ACTIONS FOR HIS CONVICTION. THE CONTINUED SELF DEFENSE EXPLANATION FOR DEFENDANTS ACTIONS ON THE NIGHT OF THE MURDER DID NOT IMPRESS THE PAROLE BOARD OR THIS COURT. IT CONCLUDES THAT THE DEFENDANT IS A DANGER TO THE COMMUNITY, IF RELEASED, IS AMPLY SUPPORTED BY THE EVIDENCE. PETITION DENIED.

PROCEEDINGS TERMINATED

CALIFORNIA COURT OF APPEALSSECOND APPELLATE DISTRICT

Petitioner herein appeals to the Honorable Second Appellate District Court of California from the Order made by the Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles, dated January 12, 2007, attached hereto for reference.

The Superior Court apparently did not even read Petitioner's second parole hearing denial of which the instant habeas petition was based. Petitioner contends that his "first" petition to the Superior Court years ago had as a portion of Petitioner's prison address, as Box 689 "G-144U". Upon examining page 2 of the courts order it is apparent that the Court simply referred to past information in their computer file and produced the instant decision based on the "first" petitions information.

Petitioner's habeas form at page (1), (Second/instant petition), clearly had Petitioner's new and at the time of the second petition his address as Box 689 "G-117". There is only one court documentation that contained the "G-144U" address and that was the "first" petition several years ago, which is currently under consideration in the United States District Court (Northern District) in San Francisco.

Nonetheless the Superior Court's 'decision' was contrary to and an unreasonable application of U.S. Supreme Court law and an apparent violation of Petitioner's right of "meaningful" access to the court for a proper and just adjudication, on the merits, of his claims.

The semi-post card denial was ultimately based on the circumstances of the crime and Petitioner's refusal to take full responsibility for his actions, with the Superior Court apparently relying on Petitioner's "first" parole board denial, the petition of which was filed years ago.

First, it is established in the record that Petitioner was convicted of a second degree murder and not an offense that warranted the death penalty or

1 life without the possibility of parole as set forth in full in the second petition
2 attached hereto.

3 Secondly, while so many courts, including the Governor and the Board rely 4 on an inmate "taking full responsibility for his actions" (showing remorse is 5 the ultimate issue) creates an equal protection violation in and of itself. Under 6 California law, Penal Code §5011(b) (Legislative intent being at issue), state 7 in pertinent part:

8 (b) The Board of Prison Terms shall not require, when setting parole 9 dates, an admission of guilt to any crime for which an inmate was committed. (Stats...).

10 Although not at issue (yet) is the fact that every denial from the Governor
11 (and Boards decision, at issue herein), relies on a failure to show sufficient 12 remorse or failure to take full responsibility for the crime.

13 Although the Board cites to their rules and regulations that they will not
14 take into consideration the fact that the inmate refuses to discuss the crime
15 or make an admission the Board does employ the rote/form language that "until 16 the inmate shows 'insight', ...". The only logical reason for the denial was 17 that Petitioner's perception of the offense did not compare to the Board's wishes.
18 Petitioner has always admitted his culpability in the instant offense and has 19 shown signs of remorse, although obviously insufficient signs of remorse for 20 the Board or Superior Court.

21 Under the Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution and California
22 Constitution Article I, Section 7(a) we find the Equal Protection Clauses. It
23 is established that under the Boards "guidelines" for suitability, that showing
24 signs of remorse is a positive feature of finding suitability. Thus if a person
25 refuses to show remorse or through his claim of actual innocence, he cannot show
26 remorse he fails to have this one positive feature considered in his suitability
27 equation, discrimination by the Board because Petitioner's version of the offense
28 does not comport with their version. Case precedents support the fact that a

1 denial cannot be based or relied upon to support a finding that Petitioner's
2 version is different. A "class of one" has been created through separate and 3 distinct treatment for parole suitability, see Petitioner's case citations and 4 argument in the herein attached petition under Term Setting, see, habeas corpus
5 petition attached, at pages 8-12 for U.S. Supreme Court case precedents.

6 The Superior Court came to the 'conclusion' that the instant offense was 7 committed due to the issue of kidnapping and robbery by the victim and his 8 friends. Petitioner asserts that while this issue of what Petitioner, through 9 his translation comes out as a kidnapping, the issue that caused the shooting
10 was the 'perceived' threat on his life by the victim coming at him with a broken
11 beer bottle, see trial transcripts. The issue of the broken beer bottle is 12 established in the list of evidence and direct testimony from police that 13 discovered the broken neck of the beer bottle. Under Flannel and Cēja, California
14 Court of Appeal cases (citations omitted), the Cēja case was adjudicated by this 15 Court, it was what Petitioner perceived at the time, an eminent threat to his 16 life, even if totally unjustified it is what he saw in his reasoning at that 17 instant. (see attached exhibit # "1").

18 In Flannel and Cēja it was discussed that it could be perceived that a man
19 making a gesture toward him, with keys in his hand could be perceived as a knife
20 or gun and although being harmless keys it is what Cēja and/or Flannel perceived 21 at the time. (Thus making the offense one of manslaughter). The offense of 22 manslaughter vs. second degree murder is not at issue but that the Superior Court
23 somehow converts the offense to one of perceived kidnapping from one of perceived 24 deadly assault with a broken beer bottle, resulting in Petitioner shooting the 25 victim in the arm, is unjustified. Note* The bullet traveled into the victim's 26 torso, the victim was not nor ever shot twice nor shot directly in the body.
27 Somehow the Board and Superior Court judge Petitioner's "lack of taking full 28 responsibility for his actions" because he claims self defense for what he

1 perceived at the time. Petitioner's current Psychological Evaluation is replete
2 with Petitioner showing remorse, and the Board's trial transcripts show the same
3 fact, that Petitioner does show remorse, although P.C. §5011(b), by Legislative 4 intent, does not require a showing of remorse for a parole suitability trial.

5 The Superior Court's form/rote language that the Board's, "It conclusion
6 (sic) that the defendant is a danger to the community, if released, "is amply 7 supported by the evidence". (See attached exhibit # "1").

8 Nowhere does the Superior Court even hint at what evidence they are referring 9 to for support of their semi-post card denial. There is no evidence in the 10 (current) record, what-so-ever to support such a decision and "some evidence"
11 in the record is not the standard of proof in California, see Evidence Code §115
12 and Hamdi v. Rumsfeld in the instant petition.

13 Additionally, the Superior Court failed to adjudicate the claims presented 14 by Petitioner, thus under California Rules of Court those claims are deemed to 15 be true and correct, as Petitioner understands the issue.

16 The Superior Court failed to consider the fact that Petitioner can never 17 be "paroled" but only deported, not even giving a reference to this issue the 18 Court simply recited from the Board's denial, "The parole board concluded that 19 defendant's release at this time would pose an unreasonable risk of danger to 20 society (sic)."

21 Although one could argue that society means a threat to Guatemalan society
22 it must be understood that California law and parole stop at the border,
23 California cannot impose its ideas, culture or values on another countries 24 society, to bootstrap and bolster its excuses for denial of suitability for 25 parole. Petitioner cannot be paroled but only deported, he has an INS hold, he 26 will never be turned over to a parole agent, he will never be among California
27 or United States society.

28 The Superior Court's semi-post card denial based on what Petitioner perceives

1 with reasonable belief, due to the address of G-144U, that the court never gave 2 full or even minuscule consideration to his second hearing denial petition and 3 if they would have fairly adjudicated the claims the court would have come to 4 an obviously different and fair consideration/conclusion of his constitutional 5 issues.

6 Thus, Petitioner herein submits his 'complete' habeas petition as was 7 delivered to the Superior Court, for this Court's adjudication, as though set 8 forth in full.

9 Respectfully submitted,

1 To the Honorable Judges:

2 Comes now, Marco Marroquin, Petitioner in pro per, and hereby petitions
3 this Court for a writ of habeas corpus and by this verified petition he sets
4 forth the following facts and causes for issuance of the writ.

5 I.

6 Petitioner is presently incarcerated and confined from his liberty by the 7 Warden in the state prison at Soledad, CA. Petitioner is serving a sentence of 8 15 years to life plus 3 years, pursuant to a judgment imposed by the Honorable 9 Elizabeth Baron, Judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

10 II.

11 Petitioner hereby incorporates all relevant exhibits, numbered and referenced 12 throughout this petition, and via Motion for Judicial Notice.

13 III.

14 Petitioner asserts that under the California Indeterminate Sentencing Laws, 15 he is entitled to a term fixed proportionately to his individual culpability
16 and fair, and individualized, consideration for parole under Cal. P.C. §3041(a)(b)
17 along with rules and regulations and case citations listed herein.

18 IV.

19 An indeterminate sentence which does not have a term fixed is deemed to 20 be the maximum term for purposes of constitutional analysis. Since no
21 indeterminately sentenced prisoners in California have a term fixed (see, 22 exceptions under CLASS OF ONE) all have had their punishment summarily fixed 23 at the maximum.

24 V.

25 The Legislature has specified three categories of culpability for the offense
26 of murder in California. The most serious is one of "special circumstances" first 27 degree murder, involving malice, premeditation, and the concurrent commission
28 of an additional serious felony, and has a punishment of either the death penalty

1 or life without the possibility of parole. The second most serious is first degree
2 murder, involving malice and premeditation, and has a punishment of 25 years-
3 to-life. The last category is second degree murder, involving only malice, and 4 a punishment of 15 years-to-life.

5 VI.

6 Since no terms are fixed (except the CLASS OF ONE), all have been set at 7 "life"; this is contrary to the California Supreme Courts determination that 8 each offender is entitled to a term fixed proportionately to individual 9 culpability.

10 VII.

11 The failure to fix terms (except CLASS OF ONE) and summary denial of parole
12 dates for life prisoners by the BPH show a defacto policy of refusing to follow
13 the California Penal Codes, the California Constitutions Article I, section 7(a)
14 Equal Protection Clause, also, United States Constitutions Fourteenth Amendment, 15 Equal Protection.

16 VIII.

17 Petitioner has no plain, speedy or adequate remedy at law to protect his 18 constitutional rights on these issues other than by this petition.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

2 In August of 1991, Luis Silva and his girlfriend, Delcia Lopez, agreed to 3 buy a car from Petitioner for two thousand dollars. Silva was given possession
4 of the car, and was supposed to pay Petitioner every two weeks. After the first 5 two weeks however, Silva returned the car, saying that it had a lot of defects.
6 Silva and Petitioner disagreed and argued when Silva tried to give the keys back
7 to Petitioner. Petitioner asked Silva to pay him for the time that he had the 8 car, but Silva refused to pay. Petitioner told Silva that he would regret what 9 he had done to him.

10 At approximately 10 P.M. on January 12, 1992, Petitioner and another man
11 entered the La Bajadita Bar in Compton. Before entering, the security guard 12 checked the two men for weapons and found none. A short time later, Silva also 13 entered the bar, but did not sit with Petitioner. Both men ordered beer. From 14 that point forward, the defense and prosecution cases go in different directions,
15 with vastly different evidence and completely different testimony in support 16 of their theories of the case.

17 The prosecutions case continues with none of the employees at the bar
18 recalling any argument between Petitioner and Silva, or even seeing the men
19 approach each other while inside the bar. At some point, Silva left the bar to 20 move his car. About two minutes after Silva left, Petitioner also left the bar,
21 with the man that he had entered with, and walked along Compton towards Williams 22 street.

23 About 10 minutes later, Petitioner and his companion returned to the bar
24 and tried to re-enter it. However, when the security guard searched Petitioner, 25 he discovered a gun and told Petitioner that he could not go inside the bar with 26 a weapon. Petitioner and his companion then moved away to a distance of about 27 three parked cars from the entrance to the bar and remained there.

28 Silva, after moving his car, returned in the direction of the bar. As Silva

1 reached the curb, Petitioner came toward him, according to the security guard.
2 Petitioner called Silva a son of a bitch and they argued about a car. Petitioner
3 said to Silva that he would have to pay Petitioner for the car. Silva said that
4 he did not want any problems with Petitioner, and did not threaten Petitioner
5 in any manner. Petitioner then called Silva a son of a big whore. The guard did 6 not see if Silva had anything in his hands, and that Silva's hands were at his 7 sides.

8 The security guard saw Petitioner point a gun at Silva and say that i'm 9 going to kill you. Petitioner pulled the trigger the first time and the gun did
10 not fire; he pulled it a second time and it fired. The guard did not see if Silva 11 was shot when Petitioner fired the gun. As Silva bent over, the guard pulled 12 him down to the ground and placed him in front of the doorway. Petitioner turned 13 and walked towards Williams street with his friend. There was no one else on 14 the street at that time.

15 The security guard contacted Deputy Reynolds and directed the officers to 16 Petitioner where he was standing by a white Toyota pickup with a gun in his hand.

17 A search of the immediate area and the victim's person revealed no weapons.
18 One shell casing was later found about 10-12 feet from where Silva had been lying.
19 No broken bottles were found at that time, however testimony showed the presence
20 of two broken bottles in the immediate area. One unbroken Budweiser bottle was 21 found.

22 Petitioner stated that Silva had argued with him about a family problem, 23 that Silva had threatened to kick his ass and that he went to get his gun because 24 he was afraid of Silva. Petitioner kept the gun in the battery section of the 25 engine compartment of his truck. He put the gun in his back waistband and walked 26 in the direction of the bar to get something to eat at the stand outside of the 27 bar. When he got to the bar, Silva came out and began arguing again; he then 28 pulled out his gun and shot Silva. Petitioner's defense was that Silva had tried

1 to cut him with a broken bottle.

2 The cause of death was listed as a gunshot wound to the abdomen, the evidence
3 established that the initial point of entry was a flesh wound to the arm and 4 the projectile deflecting into the body.

5 The defense case describes problems between Silva and Petitioner's girlfriend
6 and her brothers. It seems that Silva was living with Delcia, Petitioner's
7 girlfriend's sister, but was married to one of Delcia's cousins. This resulted 8 in Delcia and her brothers throwing Silva out of their house.

9 The night of the incident, Petitioner was in the bar talking with a friend
10 called "Pink Floyd", who was also a friend of Silva. When Petitioner was seated 11 in the bar, Silva came up and said to Floyd, "stop talking to trash", referring 12 to Petitioner. Silva then picked Petitioner up by his collar, and when Floyd 13 said, "you're not going to fight in here", Silva then said, "tell him to go
14 outside if he's a man". Silva then pushed Petitioner and said to him, "let's 15 go out, faggot". Silva accused Petitioner of being a gigolo because someone was 16 supporting him, and also accused him of trying to defraud Silva by asking for 17 money for the use of the car.

18 They went outside the bar where Floyd stood between them and prevented them
19 from fighting. Petitioner walked towards his car, intending to leave. He heard 20 steps behind him and turned to see Silva coming at him with something in his 21 right hand that could have been a knife. Petitioner kicked Silva's hand and Silva
22 turned and ran away. Petitioner was very frightened because he believed Silva
23 had tried to kill him. Petitioner then got his gun from his truck and loaded
24 it. He looked toward the front of the bar and saw Silva's car driving away.

25 Thinking that Silva had left, Petitioner then returned towards the bar.
26 As he walked towards the bar, Silva drove by in his car and yelled to him,
27 challenging him to a fight. Silva then made a U-turn and parked on the opposite 28 side of the street. Silva then came running toward Petitioner and, as he

1 approached, he reached down and broke a bottle he was holding by the neck.

2 Silva attacked Petitioner several times with the broken neck of the bottle,
3 but Petitioner was able to jump out of the way. Silva continued to taunt and 4 insult Petitioner. After Floyd again tried to intervene, Silva lunged a final 5 time at Petitioner with the broken bottle and Petitioner shot him in the arm.
6 At the moment that he pulled the trigger, Petitioner thought that Silva was going 7 to stab him with the bottle neck.

8 Victor Matute testified that he arrived at the La Bajadita Bar on January 9 12, 1992, between 10 P.M. and midnight. As he approached the door, he saw three 10 people arguing on the sidewalk. It appeared that two of the people wanted to 11 fight the other person. He then saw one of the people try to hit the third person
12 with a bottle. The third person moved to the side to avoid being hit. He then 13 saw the third person shoot the person with the bottle.

14 Finally, Los Angeles County Deputy Sheriff Reynolds testified that on the 15 night of the shooting, Guadalupe Suazo, the manager of the La Bajadita Bar, told 16 him he had seen Petitioner and Silva argue for a minute inside the bar. Bertha
17 Angeli, the owner of La Bajadita, also indicated to him that she had seen
18 Petitioner and Silva arguing in the bar that night.

III.

THE BOARD VIOLATED PETITIONER'S EQUAL PROTECTION RIGHTS UNDER THE CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTION, ARTICLE I, Sec. 7(a), AND, THE FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT OF THE U.S. CONSTITUTION WHEN THEY FAILED TO CONSIDER SETTING HIS TERM AND FAILURE TO FIX A PRIMARY TERM, (SEPARATE AND DISTINCT TREATMENT OF A "CLASS OF ONE").

IV.

THE BOARD VIOLATED PETITIONER'S DUE PROCESS RIGHTS UNDER THE FIFTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENTS OF THE U.S. CONSTITUTION WHEN THEY DENIED HIM A PAROLE DATE BASED ON P.C. §3041(b), BECAUSE HIS CONVICTION WAS "A TERRIBLE OFFENSE".

V.

THE BOARD VIOLATED PETITIONER'S DUE PROCESS RIGHTS UNDER THE FIFTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENTS OF THE U.S. CONSTITUTION AND, CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTION ARTICLE I, Sec. 7(a) WHEN THEY DENIED PAROLE BASED ON A PREDETERMINED OUTCOME.

VI.

THE BOARD VIOLATED PETITIONER'S DUE PROCESS RIGHTS UNDER THE FIFTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT OF THE U.S. CONSTITUTION BY HOLDING "PAROLE SUITABILITY" HEARINGS FOR A FOREIGN NATIONAL, THAT WILL BE DEPORTED, WHO CAN NEVER BE RELEASED ON PAROLE IN CALIFORNIA. PENAL CODE §3041(a)(b) IS UNCONSTITUTIONALLY VAGUE AND AMBIGUOUS AS TO PAROLE v. DEPORTATION FOR FOREIGN NATIONALS WITH AN "INS" HOLD.

 17 Inc. v. Superior Court, (1982) 32 Cal.3d 211, 218-219, and Adamson v. Zipp, (1984)
 18 163 Cal.App.3d Supp. 1, n.17, Petitioner hereby requests that this Court take 19 "Judicial Notice" of the attached documents (directly attached to the habeas 20 petition): (A), Petitioners Transcripts of the June 6, 2006 parole suitability

4 Consulate/Embassy. Review of the attached documents/cases will assist this Court
5 in evaluating the arguments presented in Petitioner's habeas corpus, pages 1-

STATE AND FEDERAL CLAIM NUMBER ONE (I)
 CALIFORNIA PENAL CODE §3041(a)(b) CREATES A PREOTECTABLE
 LIBERTY INTEREST AT A PAROLE SUITABILITY HEARING, AND A
 "REASONABLE" EXPECTATION OF A RELEASE DATE. THE COMMANDING
 WORD "SHALL" CLEARLY ESTABLISHES THIS EXPECTATION.

Under California law, a convicted person sentenced to a term of 15/25 years
 "TO LIFE" shall be released on parole unless his release would pose an unreasonable risk to public safety or unreasonable risk to society if released from prison. Cal. P.C. §3041(a)(b); Cal. Code of Regs., Title 15, §§2400-2402.

It is well established that the words "...shall be released on parole..."
 create a liberty interest in parole release therefore constitutional due process standards are mandatory. Moody v. Daggett, 429 U.S. 78, 50 L.Ed.2d 236, 97 S.Ct.
 274 (1976). A parole liberty interest involves values protected by the due process clauses of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments.

It is settled that a liberty interest has been created by California law;
Perveler v. Estelle, (9th Cir. 1992) 974 F.2d 1132; Bergen v. Spaulding, (9th Cir. 1989) 881 F.2d 719, 721, (citing Greenholtz and Allen); Biggs v. Terhune, (9th Cir. 2003) 334 F.3d 910, 914-916; McQuillion v. Duncan, (9th Cir. 2002)
 306 F.3d 895, 901-902; Sass, 2006, DJDAR 11931 (9th Cir.).

"Although we have never directly held that California parole scheme creates a protected liberty interest, we have repeatedly assumed that it does." See, Powell v. Gomez, 33 F.3d 39, 40 (9th Cir. 1994); "today we hold what we have previously assumed. Under the "clearly established" framework of Greenholtz and Allen, we hold that California's parole scheme gives rise to a cognizable liberty interest to release on parole. The scheme "creates a presumption that parole release will be granted" unless the statutorily defined determinations are made."
Allen, 482 at 378 (quoting Greenholtz, 442 U.S. at 12); The California Court of Appeals in In re Deluna, 126 Cal.App.4th 585, 24 Cal.Rptr.3d 643 (2005), decided after Dammenberg, held that under Rosenkrantz, 29 Cal.4th at 661, and McQuillion v. Duncan, supra, that parole applicants continue to have a "liberty interest" in parole release.

STATE AND FEDERAL CLAIM NUMBER TWO (II)

THE BOARD VIOLATED PETITIONER'S DUE PROCESS RIGHTS UNDER THE FIFTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENTS OF THE U.S. CONSTITUTION, CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTION, ARTICLE I, Sec. 7(a), WHEN THEY APPLIED TITLE 15 C.C.R. §§2400-2411 TO OVER-RIDE AND CONTROL PENAL CODE Sec. §3041(a)(b).

Title 15 C.C.R. §§2400-2411 are in direct violation of the California Constitution, Article II, §10(c) (Referendum Process). Proposition 7 did not permit (to P.C. §190, et seq.) any additions, amendments, repealing or superceeding; to be 'inclusive' to Proposition 7 without voters approval.

Government Code Section 11340(a); "The Administrative regulations are authorized by statute, and consistent with other statutes of law, section (f) requires the direct involvement of the Legislature and the Executive Branch."

Government Code Section 11340.1(a); "The Legislature declares that public interest established the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) which shall be charged with review of adopted regulations, which substitutes performance standards (e.g., the fulfillment or accomplishment in a given case, the substantial performance) for 'prescriptive' (based on legal prescription or as approved by law) standards. The intent that neither the OAL nor court shall substitute its judgment for rule-making agency in the substantive content of adopted regulations. With the intent of the Legislature the OAL is a part of the Executive Branch of the state government, and reports directly to the Legislature."

Government Code Section 11342.2: "The adoption of regulations is to implement, interpret and make specific to carry out the provisions of the statute ..."but" ... no regulation adopted is valid or effective unless consistent and not in conflict with statutes or constitution to effectuate the purpose, of the regulations." (Emphasis added).

Petitioner asserts that; The Department of Corrections (CDC) Regulations Management Department writes the regulations. The OAL as to Gov. Code 11342.2 implements, interprets and makes specific the provisions for the regulations statute. The Legislative Body chapters, presents to the Governor and is filed with the Secretary of State as a statute of law for 15 C.C.R. regulations.

Petitioner asserts that; The Initiative Measure Proposition 7, did not provide for any continuation (Gov. Code §9604) of rules and regulations of the Administrative Procedures Act (APA) of 1976, nor the OAL enacted in 1979, operative 7-1-1980, which gives the CDC and the BPH explicit authority for

1 administration of prisoners, (P.C.'s §§5058, 5076.2) under Gov. Code Section 2 11340, enabling statute.

3 The interpretation of Proposition 7, with no implied provisions or mandates
4 to be carried through from one statute to another, "under circumstances" in which 5 would be required or considered as re-instatements for continuation of statute
6 (Gov. Code §9604) ... "but" ... as Petitioner asserted the BPH regulations are 7 approved by the OAL under the Legislatures Constitutional grant of power (Cal.
8 Const. Art. VI, §6; P.C. §6). The BPH added New Article II, Sections. §§2400-2411
9 as filed 9-8-1981; Register 81 No. 37; the parole considerations criteria and 10 guidelines, creating 'procedural provisions and mandates' that cannot be applied
11 to Proposition 7's Initiative Measure without voters approval.

12 In People v. Cooper, C.A.1st, No. A087483, Nov. 1, 2000; re: issue of 13 application of time credits under P.C. §2933, the court held that:

14 "Specifically, Cooper argued that since section 190, the Briggs
15 initiative, was adopted by voters in 1978, it can only be amended upon 16 approval of the voters. Hence, Section 2933 cannot apply to his sentence because it was adopted by the Legislature."

17 Affirmed as modified. "The additions ... constituted a legislative 18 change to the Briggs Initiative that required voter approval pursuant to Article II, Section 10, of the California Constitution." In re Oluwa, 207 Cal.App.3d 439 (1989).

19 Petitioner asserts that; Title 15, Division II, C.C.R. §§2400-2411 which 20 are guidelines used by the BPH against inmates sentenced under Proposition 7's
21 P.C. §190 et seq., are in direct violation of the California Constitutions 22 Referendum Process. P.C. §3041 cannot be controlled by Division II criteria (as 23 is exactly what is done by the Board, thus over-riding a clearly stated penal 24 code), thus the only true (and legally correct) criteria for a parole date is 25 that the inmate does not pose an unreasonable risk to society, see P.C.
26 §3041(a)(b); this issue has already been decided (twice) by a state
27 certified/licensed (expert) psychologist/psychiatrist.

28 An inspection of the parole hearing transcripts (passim) establish that,

1 "You have received absolutely zero 115s. That is extraordinarily rare." (Ex-"A"
2 p.74). "You have no previous record whatsoever"; "You've participated in AA and
3 NA since 95"; "Your psychiatrist's report was favorable"; "the report was 4 positive"; "he indicated you showed genuine remorse"; "you would be better on 5 parole - you would be in the top 2 percent for success"; "Your parole plans are 6 good"; "You have excellent parole plans for Guatemala"; "...you had started your 7 own business"; "Commissioner Keenan called you an entrepreneur"; "Commissioner
8 Keenan and I believe that you can take care of yourself and your family no
9 problem"; "...we're guiding and directing you because we believe in you...";
10 "We were particularly impressed..." (p.79); "Most impressive was your request
11 to participate in individual counseling with Dr. Reed"; "...the insight and 12 feeling that you developed..."; "You have done a lot of good work, we want you
13 to keep the momentum going"; "you've been on the right path, you're doing a lot 14 of good things": "We're behind you".

15 On page 75 (Ex-"A") the Board is requiring letters of support showing that 16 he could potentially get a job in the Los angeles area.

17 It is clear that Petitioner has an INS hold on him and "will" be deported,
18 also this issue was established at his first hearing when the Commissioners stated
19 that "you will be deported, I can guarantee it".

20 In Martin v, Marshall, 2006 WL 1344584 (N.D. Cal.), page 8-9: "Section 21 2402(d)(8) provides that a prisoner may be suitable for release if "[t]he prisoner
22 has made realistic plans for release or has developed marketable skills that 23 can be put to use upon release." The subsection does not require that a prisoner
24 have viable parole plans in the United States." "The Governor's reasoning would 25 require petitioner to make plans to enter the United States illegally, then
26 communicate those illegal plans to the Board in order to be granted a release 27 date."

28 Although Petitioner asserts that Division II, Sections §§2400-2411 cannot

1 be applied to him, or any other similarly situated inmate, in violation of the 2 California Constitution (which thus violates Petitioner's due process and equal
3 protection rights under both the California and United States Constitutions),
4 he further asserts that "if" the sections 'for suitability' were applied to him
5 NONE of the criteria for a denial of a parole date would be met by the BPH.
6 Indeed, a reasoned reading of the Board's "DECISION" indicates or rather fails
7 to indicate any discernible reason or excuse for a denial of a parole release
8 date. The 'only' articulated wording that could possibly be implied as a 'reason'
9 for denial are: "First of all, we know that this was - this commitment offense
10 was a - a terrible offense". (Ex-"A" at p.73); "the motive for the crime was 11 very trivial in relation to the offense." (Ex-"A" at p.73).

12 These reasons/excuses are clearly within the framework of the Matrix which 13 the Board is supposed to follow. Indeed, because Title 15 C.C.R. §§2400-2411
14 enactment is in clear violation of the California Constitution the Board cannot 15 even apply the Matrix to his crime. Thus Petitioner falls within the equal 16 protection clauses of both the California and United States Constitution because 17 of unequal treatment. Prior to the passage of Proposition 7 in 1978 the Board
18 had a 'legally enacted Matrix' to follow for purposes of uniformity of sentences 19 and currently there is no legal Matrix. (Separate treatment, separate class of 20 individuals under the intent and meaning of equal protection.).

21 Furthermore, a regulation (Title 15 §§2400-2411) cannot over-ride a clearly 22 stated statutory enactment (Cal. P.C. §§3041 et seq.). See, Aerolineas Argentinas
23 v. U.S., 77 F.3d 1564 (Fed. Cir. 1996).

24 The BPH cannot apply or use §§2400-2411 to over-ride the Legislative intent
25 (as asserted herein) of Cal. P.C. §3041(b). §3041(b) is not ambiguous but rather 26 it is plain and clear in its meaning and who/when it applies and is a factual
27 representation of Legislative intent; That an inmate "shall" receive a parole
28 date at his first hearing, except for certain circumstances, basically stated:

1 that he is not a threat or risk to society and his crime was "not particularly 2 egregious".

3 An agency may not confer power on itself. See, Gorbach v. Reno, 219 F.3d
4 1087 (8th Cir. 2000).

5 When an administrative regulation conflicts with a statute, the statute
6 controls. (Government Code §11342.2).

7 Regulations that contravenes a statute is/are invalid. See, R & W Flammann
8 GMBH v. U.S., 339 F.3d 1320 (Fed. Cir. 2003).

9 A statute by its very nature, trumps conflicting regulations. See, Caldera
10 v. J.S. Alberici Const. Co. Inc., 153 F.3d 1381 (Fed. Cir. 1998).

11 An agencies regulations cannot legitimate the violations of constitutional 12 or statutory rights. See, U.S. v. Marolf, 173 F.3d 1213 (9th Cir. 1999).

13 By the very nature of the language of P.C. §3041(a)(b) and the absence of 14 provisions and mandates to control hearings for 15/25 years "to life" sentences
15 the Board illegally, unconstitutionally and in violation of Federal and State
16 Due Process and Equal Protection rights "attempts to control and over-ride" P.C.
17 §3041(a)(b) through the application of unconstitutionally enacted rules and 18 regulations, §§2400-2411, criteria of which NONE are legal requirements/guidelines
19 under §3041 for consideration of suitability for parole release.

20 The Board has effectively amended P.C. §3041(a)(b) and the Legislative intent
21 has been circumvented. The Board has 'unreasonably applied' U.S. Supreme Court
22 law, when using unconstitutionally enacted rules and regulations to over-ride
23 the language in Greenholtz and Allen; "SHALL" be released on parole. The Board's 24 decisions/excuses are clearly "contrary" to established U.S. Supreme Court law,
25 the California Constitution (Referendum Process) thus contrary to the holdings
26 in Greenholtz and Allen's language of Due Process rights to a fair, impartial, 27 legal and "meaningful" hearing.

STATE AND FEDERAL CLAIM NUMBER THREE (III)
 THE BOARD VIOLATED PETITIONER'S EQUAL PROTECTION RIGHTS UNDER THE CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTION, ARTICLE I, Sec. 7(a), AND, THE FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT OF THE U.S. CONSTITUTION WHEN THEY FAILED
 TO CONSIDER SETTING HIS TERM AND FAILURE TO FIX A PRIMARY TERM, (SEPARATE AND DISTINCT TREATMENT OF A "CLASS OF ONE").

For an equal protection claim to proceed Petitioner must allege specific facts in support of his claim. A habeas petitioner has the burden of alleging specific facts that show a federal claim is presented, or the petition is subject to dismissal. Jones v. Gomez, 66 F.3d 199, 204-05 (9th Cir. 1995). Conclusory allegations do not warrant habeas relief. Id. at 204.

Petitioner's allegations are not conclusory, they state a prima facie equal protection claim under both the California and Federal Constitutions.

The Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection Clause provides that no State shall deny to any person "the equal protection of the laws." (See also, California Constitution Article I, Sec. 7(a)). The Equal Protection Clause ensures that "all persons similarly situated should be treated alike." City of Cleburne v. Cleburne Living Center, 473 U.S. 432, 439 (1985). To prevail on an equal protection claim, Petitioner must initially show that he was treated differently from other similarly situated persons. City of Cleburne, supra, 473 U.S. at 439; Fraley v. United States Bureau of Prisons, 1 F.3d 924, 926 (9th Cir. 1993) (per curiam).

The mere fact that some inmates convicted of second degree murder may have been paroled sooner than Petitioner does not establish the basis for a federal equal protection claim. See, Sturm v. California Adult Authority, 395 F.2d 446, 448-49 (9th Cir. 1967) (holding that "the fact that other prisoners have had their sentence reduced, or been granted parole, affords no ground for complaint by petitioner.")

However Petitioner's equal protection claim lies elsewhere, other than a mere comparison between an inmate released earlier or paroled sooner than himself, as set forth herein.

EQUAL PROTECTION UNDER "CLASS OF ONE"

In the case of In re MIKAEL SCHIOLD, Court of Appeals, First Appellate District, Division Five, Case No. A103107, attached hereto with MOTION FOR JUDICIAL NOTICE, as Exhibit "B-1-6". (With numbered paragraphs).

Schiold was transferred to the country of Sweden, under the "SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND FULL AND FINAL RELEASE OF ALL CLAIMS", on habeas corpus. Schiold and Respondents entered into an "agreement" transferring Schiold to Sweden (Paragraph #4 of Exhibit "B").

Case No. A103107 was agreed to as "stayed" pending Schiold's transfer. (Paragraphs #5,6,7).

Explicitely at paragraph #8: "Releasor (Schiold) agrees that he will be held in custody by the government of Sweden until January 1, 2007."

Page 5, paragraph 16 (of Exhibit "B") establishes that: the agreement and settlement, in order to stay the case, was signed by the Supervising Deputy Attorney General, Anya Binsacca, dated 10/22/2003.

Petitioner asserts that the State of California in collusion with the Attorney General's Office and the Board did in fact violate the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, and, California Constitution Article I, Sec. 7(a), by "setting an immutable release date" for Schiold, when his term was set without being found suitable under §3041(b) and going directly to §3041(a).

The language in paragraph #8 of page #3 (Exhibit "B") of the settlement expressly states that "he will be held in custody by the government of Sweeden UNTIL January 1, 2007". Petitioner asserts that this date, January 1, 2007, established a 'term setting' under P.C. §3041(a). (Emphasis added).

One foreign national (Schiold) is being treated distinctly different than another foreign national (Petitioner Marroquin) (for that matter 'all' U.S. Citizens are being treated distinctly different than Schiold because they cannot

1 be transferred) and all similarly situated foreign nationals, thus creating
2 separate and distinct "classes" of inmates for release criteria.

3 The fact that Schiold was first found to be suitable by the Board is 4 irrelevant to the claim herein, the Governor then found Schiold to be unsuitable
5 which nullified the Board's finding of suitability. See, Paragraphs #2,3,6 of 6 Exhibit "B".

7 The most basic requirement for a claim of violation of equal protection
8 under the Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution lies on the issue of 9 non-equal treatment of a "CLASS", or, a showing of separate and/or distinct 10 difference in treatment, both criminally and civilly, among groups or "CLASSES"
11 of persons.

12 The United States Supreme Court has established a "class of one" in the 13 case of Village v. Willowbrook v. Olech, 528 U.S. 562, 145 L.Ed.2d 1060, 120
14 S.Ct. 1073 (2000) at pp.1074-75; "We granted certiorari to determine whether 15 the equal Protection Clause gives rise to a cause of action on behalf of a "class 16 of one" where the plaintiff did not allege membership in a class or group." (527
17 U.S. 1067, 120 S.Ct. 10, 144 L.Ed.2d 841 (1999)):

18 "Whether the complaint alleges a class of one or a class of five is 19 of no consequence because we concluded that the number of individuals in a class is immaterial for equal protection analysis."

20 Our cases have recognized successful equal protection claims brought by 21 a "class of one", where the plaintiff alleges that he/she has been intentionally
22 treated differently from others similarly situated and that there is no rational
23 basis for the difference in treatment. See, Sioux City Bridge Co. v. Dakota
24 County, 260 U.S. 441, 43 S.Ct. 190, 67 L.Ed. 340 (1923); Allegheny Pittsburgh
25 Coal Co. v. Commission of Webster City, 488 U.S. 336, 109 S.Ct. 633, 102 L.ED.2d
26 688 (1989). "In so doing, we have explained that 'the purpose of the equal 27 protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment is to secure every person within 28 the State's jurisdiction against intentional and arbitrary discrimination, whether occasioned by express terms of a statute or by its proper execution through duly constituted agents." See, Sioux City Bridge Co., supra, at p.445, 43 S.Ct. 190 (quoting Sunday Lake Iron Co. v. Township of Wakefield, 247 U.S. 350, 352, 38 S.Ct. 495 (1918)). "it is clearly established that a state violates the equal protection clause when it treats one set of persons differently from others who are similarly situated." Wheeler v. Miller, 168 F.3d 241, 252 (5th Cir. 1999).

Petitioner has established separate treatment, discrimination and the Board's failure to follow United States Supreme Court precedents thus their failure to set Petitioner's term, as was done to Schiold, violates both the California and United States Constitutions Equal Protection Clauses

FAILURE TO CONSIDER TERM SETTING

At no time during the hearing, nor at any time during Petitioner's incarceration has the Board considered the determinate term that Petitioner would serve (as calculated by the unconstitutionally enacted Matrix) or the time he has actually served as factors in the suitability equation. The Court of Appeals in, In re Ramirez (12-12-01) 94 Cal.App.4th 549, at 569 held:

"The Board cannot ignore the determinate term prescribed for a commitment offense when it considers the gravity of the crime as a factor weighing against a finding of suitability for parole. The Board must make its determination 'in a manner that will provide uniform terms for offenses of similar gravity and magnitude in respect to their threat to the public.' (P.C. §3041(a)). Determining what would be a 'uniform' term for an inmate serving a determinate life term for offenses that include concurrent determinate terms is not an exact science. However, the Board should strive to achieve at least a rough balance between the gravity of the offense, the time the inmate has served, and the sentences prescribed by law for the commitment offense."

At page 570, the court said:

"The Board must also consider the length of time the inmate has served in relation to the terms prescribed by the Legislature for the offenses under consideration, in order to arrive at a "uniform" term as contemplated by P.C. §3041(a)."

The gravity of Petitioner's offense must be measured not in terms of the life maximum potential, but in relation to the determinate terms prescribed for such offenses in 15 C.C.R. §2403(c). The Board must consider the appropriate determinate term that would be set and the time he has already served. The Board has failed to follow the criteria of §2403(c). (Note*: Although Petitioner asserts that §§2400-2411 cannot be applied to him the Board is still in violation by not complying with rules and regulations that they are applying.)

FAILURE TO FIX PRIMARY TERM

At no time during Petitioner's incarceration has the Board ever held a hearing to fix Petitioner's 'primary term' on his indeterminate sentence. A 'primary term' is not set in conjunction with or dependent upon a parole hearing. See, In re Rodriguez, (1975) 14 Ca.3d 639; People v. Scott, (1984) 150 Cal.App.3d 910, 918-919. Petitioner has a right to have his term fixed proportionately to his offense and his culpability.

The Los Angeles County Superior court, on June 26, 2006, In re Robert Rosenkrantz, Case No. BH003529, attached as Exhibit "C", specifically at page 3, lines 14-15 establish that the Board set Rosenkrantz term, "On September 9, 1999, petitioner was found unsuitable for parole but the panel set his prison term. A June 30, 2001 date was set for release. (Emphasis added).

Evaluating proportionality does not hinge on the life maximum, but is measuring the time actually served with the sentence deemed appropriate by the Board's sentencing regulations. The Board cannot abdicate this responsibility either by saying it has no authority to fix terms (see Schiold & Rosenkrantz) or by subsuming term-fixing under the parole function. Petitioner is entitled to the fixing of his primary term as an ultimate, immutable release date, under the Equal Protection (CLASS OF ONE) of the Fourteenth Amendment. See also, In re Rodriguez, supra; People v. Duran, (1983) 140 Cal.App.3d at 502-503; People v. Rodriguez, (1977) 19 Cal.3d 221, 230; Rosenkrantz, supra.

In McGinnis v. Royster, 93 S.Ct. 1055 (1973) the court held; at page 1057 that; "each inmate has both a 'minimum' parole date, which is the earliest date on which he 'may' be paroled at the discretion of the Parole Board, and a

1 'statutory release' date which is the earliest date he 'must' be paroled by the 2 Parole Board. (fn.3), "he also has a maximum expiration date which is the date
3 of the maximum sentence to which an inmate can be held if he receives no good 4 time credits at all."

5 The case refers to an "indeterminate sentence" and establishes that there
6 are actually three (3) dates to such a sentence; (1) the minimum parole date;
7 (2) the statutory release date, (3) the maximum expiration date (i.e., death).

8 In, in re Jeanice D. (1980) 28 C.3d 210, at p.220, the California Supreme 9 Court stated: 'The initiative, of course, was not drafted as part of the general
10 DSL, but on the contrary, explicitly replaced the determinate sentence of 5,6,
11 or 7 years established by the DSL for second degree murder with an Indeterminate 12 "15 years to life" sentence.

13 The court noted that the DSL repealed the criteria, provisions and mandates
14 of the ISL to govern indeterminate sentences. The court gave guidance at footnote
15 7 (28 C.3d 210) which the BPH still fail to take notice of (i.e., P.C. §3000).

16 Penal Code §190's 15 years to life sentence does not "expressly prescribe"
17 15 years to life to be a life sentence. See, P.C. §669; In re Collins, 99 C.A.2d 18 780, 781, 222 P.2d 686, citing, People v. Rivas, 85 C.A.2d 540, 193 P.2d 151.
19 "When the term of imprisonment for second degree murder is pronounced it is 20 "indeterminate" "until fixed" by the BPT so authorized.

21 While P.C. §1170 et seq., apply to determinate sentences, the current 22 provisions of section §3041 governing parole for inmates serving indeterminate
23 terms were added as part of the bill enacting the Determinate Sentencing Law,
24 and were intended to serve the same purpose as the determinate sentencing
25 provisions. (Stats., 1976 Ch. 1139, Sec. 281, p.5151; In re Stanworth, (1982)
26 33 Cal.3d 176, 182). Our Supreme Court has made it clear that the "uniform terms"
27 called for by section §3041(a) are analytically equivalent to determinate
28 sentences imposed under §1170 et seq. (People v. Jefferson, 21 Cal.4th 86, 96.)

STATE AND FEDERAL CLAIM NUMBER FOUR (IV)

THE BOARD VIOLATED PETITIONER'S DUE PROCESS RIGHTS UNDER THE FIFTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENTS OF THE U.S. CONSTITUTION WHEN THEY DENIED HIM A PAROLE DATE BASED ON P.C. §3041(b), BECAUSE HIS CONVICTION WAS "A TERRIBLE OFFENSE".

The key to understanding who, how and the "exception" to setting a parole date is by tracing the statute back to when it was enacted ... (July 1, 1977) (SB42), and what life prisoners the Board was required to hold hearings for.

The Uniform Determinate Sentencing Act (DSL) became effective July/1977, §3041(a)(b) were enacted as part of the (DSL) and reads today as it did in 1977. Requiring the Board to "normally" set parole dates one year before a life prisoners M.E.P.D., (subd. (a)) with (subd. (b)) providing a narrow exception to setting a parole release date for "particularly egregious offenses."

The class of life prisoners the Board was required to see after the enactment of the DSL on July 1, 1977, were (1st) degree murders and 'kidnappers', of whom both of these sentences had to serve seven (7) years before becoming eligible for parole. P.C. §3041(a)(b) was enacted 16 months before Initiative Measure Proposition 7, which increased the murder penalty of (1st) degree murder from "life" to "25 years to life" and changed (2nd) degree murder from a "determinate" term of 5, 6 or 7 years to an "indeterminate" sentence of "15 years to life."

Before Proposition 7, of November, 1978, the Board was required to see (2) main classes of life offenses of (1st) degree murder and 'kidnapping'. P.C. §3041(a) required the Board to "normally" set parole dates for those (2) classes of life sentences. The "EXCEPTION" to setting a parole date when §3041(b) is applied; offense(s) that were such in gravity; so especially grave; so particularly egregious that public safety concerns required a longer period of incarceration for these individuals and a parole date could not be set at the initial hearing.

In People v. Anderson, 6 Cal.3d 628 (1972), the California Supreme Court held that the 'then' California death penalty law was impermissibly cruel, and

1 128 prisoner's whose sentences were fixed at death now would have their sentences
2 reduced to 'life' with the possibility of parole (there was no life without the 3 possibility of parole in California at that time). (See, e.g., In re Stanworth,
4 (1982) 33 Cal.3d 176. In 1966 Stanworth was sentenced to death following a plea
5 of guilty to two (2) counts of 'first' (1st) degree murder. Stanworth was one 6 of the prisoners who came off of death row and was given a term of life with 7 a possibility of parole. In 1979 Stanworth was given a parole date after 13 years
8 and served a total of 17 years at the time of his release on parole.

9 When the DSL was enacted, July 1, 1977, this group/class of 128 prisoners,
10 that came off of death row, after serving 7 years were eligible for parole.
11 However, Sec. (b) of P.C. §3041 enabled the Board to indefinitely deny parole
12 because their offense(s) were of such gravity ("particularly egregious") in nature
13 that public safety concerns allowed the Board to deny setting a uniform term
14 under subd. (a) of §3041.

15 The offense(s) of the 128 prisoners that came off of death row were not 16 comparable to 'normal' first (1st) degree murder or kidnapping offenses, under 17 the provisions of the Uniform Proportionate Punishment for base terms in the 18 Board's Matrix guidelines for similar offenses. All of the 128 prisoners 19 convictions had "special circumstances" (initially warranting the death penalty 20 sentence). P.C. §3041(a) requires the Board to establish criteria not only for 21 the setting of a parole release date, but also criteria for the "EXCEPTION" to 22 setting a parole date under §3041(b) and §3041.5(b)(2). This criteria to the 23 "exception" is implemented in the Board's 1978 amended regulations, Title 15
24 C.C.R. §2281(c)(1)(A)(B)(C)(D), et seq..

25 The first amendment of subsection (c) filed 6/28/1979, (Register 79, No.
26 26): "Circumstances tending to show unsuitability", "the prisoner committed the 27 offense in an especially heinous, atrocious or cruel manner."

28 The language and circumstances were adopted from Proposition 7's section

1 §190.2(a)(14). P.C. §190.2 ONLY applies to prisoners with a sentence of life
 2 without the possibility of parole or the death penalty, NOT for prisoners serving
 3 a (1st) or (2nd) degree murder sentence with the possibility of parole. Compare
 4 Title 15 C.C.R. §2281 and §2402.

5 The circumstances tending to show unsuitability ... are the "EXCEPTIONS"
 6 to setting a parole release date, which, prior to the sentences of 15/25 years
 7 to life of Proposition 7 (1978) had a VERY NARROW application. The "exception"
 8 was not NORMALLY applied but was meant to be (per legislative intent), applied 9 to the 128 prisoners that came off of death row.

10 The Board is violating Petitioner's due process rights by unconstitutionally
 11 applying the "exception", §3041(b) to ALL 'to life' prisoners of Proposition
 12 7. By applying P.C. §3041(b) to ALL 'to life' prisoners, making the EXCEPTION
 13 the NORM, the Board has effectively destroyed the proportionality contemplated 14 by P.C. §3041(a).

15 By legislative intent, P.C. §3041(b) CANNOT be applied to (1st) or (2nd)
 16 degree murder sentences (15/25 years to life), "unless" the exception is proven.

17 In summary, the enactment of P.C. §3041(a) of 1977, provided that parole
 18 dates shall normally be set for (1st) and (2nd) degree murder sentences, with 19 subdivision (b) serving as the NARROW EXCEPTION and only being applied to offenses
 20 that are not of the normal first or second degree murder ... the 128 prisoners 21 that came off of death row had special circumstances that the "exception" was 22 intended (by legislative intent) to apply to.

23 In People v. Thompson, 29 Cal.Rptr.2d 847 (Cal.App.2 Dist. 1994); a case
 24 involving a fire bombing of a residence after midnight and a 2 year old child 25 was killed, the court held that;

26 "Given this deference to the Legislature, defendant is wise not to 27 challenge the sentence imposed by the Legislature for those who are 28 convicted under section 12310. That branch has determined this crime is particularly dangerous to human life and those who are convicted of causing death by igniting a destructive device should be sure to suffer a penalty separate and apart from the murder statutes. The penalty challenged herein is calculated to advance a critically important social policy for the protection of the public at large, i.e., the deterrence of a PARTICULARLY EGREGIOUS type of life-endangering criminal conduct." (People v. Isitt (1976) 55 Cal.App.3d 23, 31, 127 Cal.Rptr. 279; People v. Laursen (1972) 8 Cal.3d 192, 198, 104 Cal.Rptr. 425, 501 P.2d 1145.).

At pp.851-852: "As noted above, the legislative determination has made that the crime involved in this case is a more serious crime than premeditated murder and deserves the augmented penalty associated with it. The use of destructive devices, Molotov cocktails in this instance, which can inflict indiscriminate and multiple deaths, marks defendant as a greater danger to society than a person who premeditates the murder of a single individual." (Emphasis added throughout).

It is apparent that the court followed "legislative intent" for cases that were "particularly egregious" in sentencing Thompson. As asserted by Petitioner above, §3041(b) was enacted by the Legislature for such purposes that the "exceptions" to, separate and apart from the murder statutes, would apply. Thompson, [3] at 850.

A crime is "particularly egregious" when elements of 'special circumstances' were found that would authorize a sentence of life without the possibility of parole or the death penalty. In re Leslie Van Houten, 116 Cal.App.4th 339, (2004). (Note* In Van Houten, the jury found special circumstances, true at her trial).

Petitioner's conviction clearly falls within the Matrix (although under California Constitution Article II, §10(c) is illegal, see argument herein), that the Board is "supposed to follow", and, there were no special circumstances found to be true at his trial thus the Board cannot apply subdivision (b) of §3041 to his suitability hearing. Additionally, several courts have used the language of "ax murder", "execution style murder", when compared to "normal", "ordinary run", "common scenario", "conventional" when addressing NON particularly egregious murder cases. (Citations omitted).

Properly viewed, under the facts presented above, Petitioner's commitment offense simply cannot be so "particularly egregious" as to justify a denial of parole pursuant to P.C. §3041(a)(b).

Petitioner asserts that, in the Board's DECISION, there is not one word indicating the usage of particularly egregious or any other language that could be remotely construed as such. The only language used to deny him a parole date were: "this commitment offense was a - a terrible offense"; "The motive for the crime was very trivial in relation to the offense."

In, In re Ramirez, Marin County Superior Court, Case No. SC109829A (9-13-2000), (94 Cal.App.4th 549), the court held that parole could not be withheld absent a factual finding that the offense was "particularly egregious."

Petitioner asserts that, The triviality of the crime claim is only supported by Title 15 C.C.R. §2400-2411, which were unconstitutionally enacted in violation of the Referendum Process, see Cal. Const. Art. II, §10(c).

The Board's decision was arbitrary and capricious as there was no legitimate, logical reason for the denial of a release date as Petitioner has served over the minimum term for a second degree offense and is now starting to serve a sentence of first degree murder.

Furthermore, the "Proposal" for the initiative measure Proposition 7 clearly states that the ONLY change to 2nd degree murder is the increase to 15 years "to life". Proposition 7 ONLY changes the number of years to be served, i.e., an increase in punishment. There is NO implied difference between the malice as to 5, 6 or 7 years for 2nd degree murder and 15 years "to life".

See, In re Jeanice D. (1980) 28 Cal.3d p.220, of which establishes 15 years "to life" as being a lesser crime than 1st degree murder, 25 years "to life".

Petitioner has a liberty interest in parole according to the legislative intent of the statute. STATE AND FEDERAL CLAIM NUMBER (V)
 THE BOARD VIOLATED PETITIONER'S DUE PROCESS RIGHTS UNDER
 THE FIFTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT OF THE U.S. CONSTITUTION,
 AND, CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTION ARTICLE 7(a) WHEN THEY DENIED
 PAROLE BASED ON A PREDETERMINED OUTCOME.

The Board's decision satisfies due process only if "some evidence supports the decision". Superintendent, Mass. Corr. Inst. v. Hill, 472 U.S. 445, 455, 105 S.Ct. 2768, 2774, 86 L.Ed.2d 356 (1985); Rosas v. Nielsen, 428 F.3d 1229, 1232 (9th Cir. 2005)(per curiam).

Although the Board's decision is almost always based on citation to the commitment offense of the original crime, there comes a point when the use of the crime to deny parole, without other evidence, is a violation of due process. The question that still remains unresolved by the courts is 'how many times can the Board use the crime to deny parole before the due process violation occurs'.

The crime is never going to change and although the Board or Governor is "INITIALLY JUSTIFIED" in relying on the gravity of an inmate's offense in denying parole, Rosas, 428 F.3d at 1232-33; Biggs, 334 F.3d at 916, "continued reliance" on unchanging factors, the circumstances of the offense and conduct prior to imprisonment, runs contrary to the rehabilitation goals espoused by the prison system and could result in a due process violation". Biggs, 334 F.3d at 916-17; Irons v. Warden of Cal. State Prison-Solano, 358 F.Supp.2d 936, 947 (E.D. Cal. 2005).

Petitioner asserts that the court in Biggs, Irons and Rosas have already decided the issue as to how many times the crime can be used for parole consideration when they used the language of "Initially justified".

Relying on Black's Law Dictionary, SIXTH EDITION, Centennial Edition (1891-1991), which is construed as the guideline for courts language, Petitioner refers to the following examples:

- 1). INITIAL: That which begins or stands at the beginning.
2. INITIAL APPEARANCE: After arrest, the first appearance of the accused

1 before a judge or magistrate.

2 3). INITIAL CARRIER: In the law of bailments, the carrier who first receives 3 the goods...

4 4). INITIAL DETERMINATION: With respect to social security benefit claims,
5 refers to first determination of agency...

6 5). INITIATE: Commence; start; originate; introduce.

7 Petitioner asserts that the key to understanding the courts reasoning when 8 it stated "initially justified", under the dictionary's interpretation of 9 "initially" means "FIRST". Thus the court has already determined that the crime
10 cannot be used after the "initial" (first) parole board suitability hearing,
11 thus the subsequent or second usage of the crime will cause a due process
12 violation to exist.

13 Petitioner further asserts that the "some evidence" standard espoused by 14 Hill, supra is not the authority under California law. Under the holdings in 15 Jurasek v. Utah State Hospital, 158 F.3d 506 (10th Cir. 1998), the state may 16 confer more comprehensive due process protections upon its citizens than does 17 the federal government.

18 Petitioner relies on the California Evidence Code Section §115, under 19 "PREPONDERANCE OF EVIDENCE" standard, where, the preponderance of evidence is 20 to be applied to situations where there is no evidence standard set. (Such as 21 parole hearings).

22 Therefore the State of California has conferred more, or a greater, evidence
23 standard upon the Board, by making the 'minimum' evidence standard 'preponderance
24 of evidence', rather than that espoused in Hill, supra, i.e., "some evidence".

25 Hill, supra, derived the "some evidence" standard from Powell, relating 26 to a disciplinary hearing. Hill, addresses, at page 2774; "requiring a modicum
27 of evidence to support a decision to revoke good time credits". (Emphasis added 28 throughout).

At page 2774: [3]: "We hold that the requirements of due process are satisfied if some evidence supports the decision by the prison disciplinary board to revoke good time credits." (Emphasis added).

"This standard is met if 'there was some evidence from which the conclusion of the administrative tribunal could be deduced...' United States ex rel. Vajtauer v. Commissioner of Immigration, 273 U.S., at 106, 47 S.Ct., at 304.

Nonetheless the State of California has, by legislative intent, conferred more, or a greater, due process protection during parole suitability hearings under Evidence code §115 "Preponderance of Evidence" standard.

The pertinent section of Evidence Code §115 states: "Except as otherwise provided by law, the burden of proof requires proof by a preponderance of evidence." (Stats. 1965, c. 299 §2, operative Jan. 1, 1967).

Clearly Evidence Code §115 applies to parole board hearings, under the "except as otherwise provided by law" section because parole board hearings did not have any standard of proof applied until Hill was attached under the "some evidence" standard, which is contrary to California law.

Petitioner contends that the Board's denial of a parole date based on his crime being a "terrible offense", and, "The motive for the crime was very trivial in relation to the offense" does not constitute "some evidence" or for that matter, under the California legal standard (Evidence Code §115) the Board's denial does not meet the preponderance of evidence standard, that Petitioner posed a threat to public safety at the time of the second hearing, the Psychologist report established otherwise.

A denial of parole based on factors other than those contemplated by California law (P.C. §3041(b)), i.e., public safety concerns, is a decision without "some" evidentiary support within the statutory framework.

As stated by the Court in Biggs v. Terhune, (9th Cir. 2003) 334 F.3d 910:

"To insure that a state-created parole scheme serves the public interest purposes of rehabilitation and deterrence, the Parole Board must be cognizant not only of the factors required by state statute to be considered, but also the concepts embodied in the Constitution requiring

1 due process of law." (Id., at 916).

2 However, the deferential "some evidence" standard has outer limits. See,
3 Coleman v. Board of Prison terms, No. 96-0783 LKK PAN, slip op. at 9 (E.D. Cal.
4 May 19, 2005). If it is established that a particular judgment was predetermined,
5 then a prisoner's due process rights will have been violated even if there is 6 "some evidence" to support the decision. See, Bakalis v. Golembeski, 35 F.3d
7 318, 326 (7th Cir. 1994) (a decision-making "body that has prejudged the outcome
8 cannot render a decision that comports with due process."); See also, In re
9 Rosenkrantz, 29 Cal.4th at 677, 128 Cal.Rptr.2d 104, 59 P.3d 174 (a parole
10 decision "must reflect an individualized consideration of the specified criteria 11 and cannot be arbitrary and capricious.").

12 Petitioner's case presents a stronger case for release than Biggs for several 13 reasons. First Petitioner's commitment offense was far less serious than Biggs.
14 Biggs was involved in a violent, manipulative, and premeditated murder while 15 Petitioner here acted in what he perceived at the time, as a threat to his life,
16 in response to the circumstances. Second, Biggs had not yet served the full term
17 of his sentence, while Petitioner here has exceeded, with credits, his sentence
18 for second degree murder and is now serving the time for a first degree sentence.

19 Petitioner here has demonstrated exemplary behavior and evidence of 20 rehabilitation for a significant period of time (not one instance of a rules
21 violation while incarcerated). Therefore, the sole reliance on Petitioner's
22 commitment offense in denying him parole impinges on Petitioner's constitutional 23 liberty interest in parole.

24 Petitioner asserts that the excuse "it was a terrible offense" is not even 25 found in the Matrix criteria and even though the second excuse is in the Matrix 26 (triviality of the reason for the crime) is insufficient to support even the 27 unconstitutional "some evidence" standard. Therefore the Board's denial is without 28 foundation or support under the "some evidence" standard, coupled with the Board's

1 requirement for parole plans in California and Petitioner's 'perfect' prison
 2 record the Board's decision was in violation of and an unreasonable application
 3 of U.S. Supreme Court law.

4 STATE AND FEDERAL CLAIM NUMBER SIX (VI)

5 THE BOARD VIOLATED PETITIONER'S DUE PROCESS RIGHTS UNDER
 6 THE FIFTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT OF THE U.S. CONSTITUTION
 7 BY HOLDING "PAROLE SUITABILITY" HEARINGS FOR A FOREIGN NATIONAL, THAT WILL BE DEPORTED, WHO CAN NEVER BE RELEASED
 ON PAROLE IN CALIFORNIA. PENAL CODE §3041(a)(b) IS UNCONSTITUTIONALLY VAGUE AND AMBIGUOUS AS TO PAROLE v.
 DEPORTATION FOR FOREIGN NATIONALS WITH AN "INS" HOLD.

8 Petitioner was given a parole suitability hearing, the second or subsequent,
 9 (with an interpreter present), on June 6, 2006, the subject of this petition.

10 The rote language, at page 72 (DECISION), "...Mr. Marroquin is not yet
 11 suitable for parole and would pose an unreasonable risk of danger to society
 12 or a threat to public safety if released from prison." Petitioner was given a 13 one (1) year denial.

14 What is confounding in the record is that there is no reference to why 15 Petitioner is dangerous to society and the Psychiatrist report establishes just 16 the opposite. Petitioner's threat level assessment, by a state licensed
 17 professional Psychiatrist sets his threat level at 98. To understand this figure 18 (98) simply means that in the assessment of dangerousness to re-offend, out of 19 100 inmates released there would be 98 inmates that would re-offend or commit
 20 another crime before Petitioner did. Petitioner has an amazing 2% chance of 21 committing another crime and that in itself is sufficient to find Petitioner 22 suitable for parole.

23 The Board 'never' referred to any language of "particularly egregious" as 24 they always do. (See previous arguments).

25 Although at the first hearing (and second) there was a claim that 26 Petitioner shot the victim twice, and the letter from the police department claims
 27 that Petitioner shot the victim in the stomach are not true statements of fact 28 as to what actually happened.

1 In actuality there were two (2) entry wounds and only one (1) shot was fired
2 at the victim's arm which held the broken beer bottle. The Bullet deflected into
3 the upper torso area which caused death many hours later. See (Ex-"D-E").

4 The Board failed to support its conclusory findings to deny parole with 5 any material or relevant evidence, as is required by 15 C.C.R. §2000(b)(62)
6 (Material Evidence), or (60) (Relevant Evidence). The Board's conclusions were 7 not supported by reference to any evidence in the record bearing on the 8 "suitability criteria". The Board failed to adhere to its own "preponderance" 9 (see Evid. C. §115) of "material" and "relevant" evidence standard in the weighing 10 of evidence during its pre-decisional process. (15 C.C.R. §2000(b)(49) (Good 11 Cause). See, In re Powell (1988) 45 Cal.3d 894, at fn.10. (Inmate's right to 12 procedural due process). The Board must follow its own heightened evidentiary 13 standard. See, Terhune v. Superior Court (1998) 65 Cal.App.4th 864.

14 There was no evidence that Petitioner's offense was "egregious" enough to 15 justify a denial of parole since the various elements of his crime are already 16 provided for in the illegal Matrix. Indeed, as stated perviously, the egregious
17 language was never mentioned by the Board). See, in re Ramirez, supra, 94
18 Cal.App.4th 549, at 570.

19 There was no evidence to justify denial based on the unsupported conclusion
20 (See, "Ex-F") that Petitioner needs more self-help. The Board ignored the positive
21 findings expertly prepared psychological reports indicating that Petitioner does 22 not pose an unreasonable threat to public safety, (see, P.C. §3041). The Board's 23 Commissioners are not legally permitted to assume the role of expert witnesses 24 and therefore cannot reassess the findings or re-weigh the importance of an 25 individually prepared and detailed report by a state licensed professional 26 psychiatrist/psychologist staff member; by statutory code this is the sole domain
27 of the CDC Psychiatric/Psychological staff. The hearing record is completely
28 void of any listed 'expertise' regarding the Commissioners educational background

1 or state license for Psychological training that gives them the 'right' or 2 'authority' to over-ride a legitimately prepared psychological report based on 3 a 'whim/excuse', which is often done by the Board if the report is positive.

4 The Psychologists have cleared Petitioner of any need for additional therapy
 5 "or" self-help. There must be a factual underpinning to support the Board's
 6 determination. See, In re Caswell (10-10-01) 92 Cal.App.4th 1017, 1027; In re
 7 Rosenkrantz, supra, 80 Cal.App.4th 409; In re Ramirez, 94 Cal.App.4th 1017.

8 There must be "specific facts" and a "rational basis" for a departure from 9 parole guidelines. Misasi v. U.S. Parole Comm., 835 F.2d 754 (10th Cir. 1987).

10 Therefore, absent such factual underpinnings, not even sufficient to meet
 11 the "some evidence" standard, the Board's conclusions were unsupported and 12 therefore arbitrary and capricious. The decision to deny parole requires reversal 13 and Petitioner should be given a deportation date. (Note a parole date).

14 In the case of John E. Dannenberg, Case No. SC112688A, Filed May 8, 2001,
 15 where the court held: citing to In re Powell, (1988) 45 Cal.3 894, that the Board
 16 enjoys broad but not absolute discretion in parole-related matters. The Supreme 17 Court held in that case that there must be "some evidence" to support the Board's 18 determination. Id., at 904. The Marin County Court believed that the standards, 19 i.e., "some evidence" and "arbitrary and capricious" were indistinguishable.

20 DEPORTATION V. PAROLE ISSUE

21 Petitioner was born in Guatemala, his mother still lives there, his wife
 22 is going to move there with him. Petitioner has an INS hold. (See, Ex-A, passim).

23 What is most troubling to Petitioner is that the Board is requiring parole
 24 plans and job offers for California when it is well established that he will 25 be deported, without question. Petitioner has a residence in Guatemala, a trade, 26 family support. (Ex-A, passim).

27 Petitioner asserts that, as a most basic understanding of P.C. §3041(b)
 28 (threat level to the public), in the case at bar, Petitioner contends that when

1 he is paroled (which cannot legally happen) he will no longer be (and will never
 2 be) under the parole authority, (he will never be turned over to a Parole Agent
 3 but rather he will be turned over to the Federal Government's INS Agency, thus 4 under a Catch-22 situation, when he is paroled he will be free of parole because 5 California and Guatemala have no treaty for parole supervision. Thus all the 6 criteria/excuses from the Board to further his self-help, get "atta-boy chronos"
 7 furnish parole plans and job offers in California are mere excuses under the 8 arbitrary and capricious standard and furthermore cannot be applied to Petitioner.
 9 (Note* One "ah-s___" wipes out all "atta-boys".)

10 It is basically understood that the reason for any inmate's denial because 11 of a threat level to the public is to enhance the prisoner's sentence, given 12 the fact that a foreign national, like Petitioner, can "never" be found suitable 13 for parole simply because he can never be paroled (only deported), §3041(b), 14 consideration for public safety cannot be considered. In reality any foreign 15 national that is going to be deported should be found suitable for deportation
 16 at his first hearing because (b) can never be applied to the determination.

17 The court in U.S. v. Cuero-Flores, 276 F.3d 113 (2nd Cir. 2002), held that;
 18 when addressing a "special" parole issue; the court agreed with other circuits
 19 that have held supervised release terminates when the parolee is deported.

20 STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF PAROLE vs. DEPORTATION

21 California P.C. §3041(a)(b) is unconstitutionally vague and ambiguous as 22 to its application for foreign nationals that have an "INS" hold, inmates that 23 cannot be paroled but only deported thus the same criteria cannot be applied
 24 to both classes of inmates, U.S. Citizens, and, foreign nationals. Proposition 25 7 did not address the issue of deportation vs. parole.

26 Of course, all second degree murders by their very nature involve a disregard 27 for the life of another; In re Rosenkrantz, (2000) 80 Cal.App.4th 409, 419 fn.13;
 28 People v. Summers, (1983) 147 Cal.App.3d 180, 184-85 (195 Cal.Rptr. 21); People

1 v. Matta, (1976) 57 Cal.App.2d 472, 480-81 (129 Cal.Rptr. 205; People v. Bayea,
2 (1974) 38 Cal.App.3d 176, 188-89 (113 Cal.Rptr. 254). See also, CALJIC No. 8.31.

3 As in In re Smith, (2003) 114 Cal.App.4th 343, there is no evidence that
4 petitioner tormented, terrorized or injured his victim before deciding to shoot
5 him or that he gratuitously increased and unnecessarily prolonged his suffering.
6 As asked in Scott, was the crime callous? Yes, however, are the facts of the 7 crime evidence that he acted with exceptionally callous disregard for the victim's 8 suffering or do the facts distinguish his crime from other murders as 9 exceptionally callous? The record establishes that there was no intent to murder
10 the victim, to the contrary Petitioner's victim was shot once, in the arm holding 11 the broken beer bottle, and the bullet traveled to the chest area. (See Ex. "D"
12 wherein it was what Petitioner "percieved" at that instant, an eminent threat 13 to his life).

14 The inquiry of whether an actual period of confinement is excessive and 15 disproportionate hinges not on the life "potential" but on the sentencing
16 regulations promulgated by the Board under authority of statute, but not in 17 violation of the California Constitutions Referendum Process, Article II, section
18 10(c). See P.C. §§3041, 3052, 5076.2, Title 15 C.C.R. §§2400-2411.

19 Petitioner submits that his parole suitability hearing constituted a 20 meaningless, pro forma charade, the outcome of which was preordained and, as 21 such, deprived him of substantive and procedural due process.

22 It is a proper function of judicial review to ensure that the Board has 23 honored in a "practical sense" the petitioner's right to "due consideration", 24 also "individualized consideration". See, Sturm, 11 Cal.3d at p.268.

25 In the case of In re Edward Ramirez, Court of Appeal, First Appellate 26 District, Division Three, Case No. A092699, filed 12/12/01; the Court addressed
27 similar issues as presented herein and in the DISPOSITION the Court ordered,
28 among other orders, that "the Board must consider Ramirez's psychological profile

1 as a factor favoring his application for a parole date..."

2 Nonetheless, P.C. §3041(a)(b) is vague and ambiguous as to suitability for 3 "deportation" vs. suitability for "parole". The criteria to favor a positive
4 parole decision cannot apply to a foreign national, without being in violation
5 of the laws of California and the United States.

6 California P.C. §3041(a)(b) are clear in their legislative intent, for U.S.
7 Citizens that will be found suitable for "parole", the "only" criteria (see 8 Illegal Matrix argument) for a parole release date is that the inmate shall not 9 pose an unreasonable risk to society. The Board does not have the authority to 10 make this assessment and "must" follow the evaluation prepared by the state
11 licensed Psychiatrist so authorized to make such an assessment. Additionally 12 the Board has no authority in penal codes or rules and regulations to find a 13 'foreign national' (that has an INS hold or will be deported) suitable for parole
14 but only suitable for deportation.

15 CONCLUSION

16 Petitioner asserts that his MEPD for a sentence of second degree murder 17 has lapsed, his psychological evaluation concluded that his release (for 18 deportation) would not pose an unreasonable (current) risk of danger to public
19 safety, no contrary evidence exists, and Petitioner has a vested liberty interest
20 in being deported protected by due process and equal protection that required
21 the Board to find him suitable for deportation, at his first/initial hearing
22 as §3041(a)(b) cannot apply to him under the vague and ambiguous doctrine.

23 Because the Board's recitation contrary, to U.S. Supreme Court law, their 24 conclusion was inapposite to the record and unsupported by any evidence standard
25 whatsoever, denial of suitability for release for deportation on that basis denied 26 Petitioner his due process and equal protection rights.

27 Because the Board's grounds/excuses for its decision to deny release for 28 deportation, boilerplate phrases and adjectives, were unsupported by any evidence,

1 inapposite to the record, applicable to all such offenses, irrelevant to 2 suitability for deportation, and/or arbitrary in the extreme, and because the 3 Board did not determine and could not have found any evidence supporting a notion
 4 that Petitioner's offense was "a terrible offense" compared to other life offenses
 5 such as Rosenkrantz and Van Houten, the denial of Petitioner's release for 6 deportation based on the unchanging factors of his offense has abrogated his 7 right to due process and equal protection and his liberty interest in release 8 for deportation, and has converted his sentence to a first degree murder because 9 he has already served the time prescribed by law, and the illegal matrix, for 10 a second degree murder.

11 It is axiomatic that Petitioner, if someday granted a release date, under 12 P.C. §3041(a)(b), which cannot be applied to a foreign national, he will be 13 deported, thus the excuses for denial of a release date, for deportation, are 14 meaningless, contrary to law and the Legislative intent of P.C. §3041(a)(b)'s 15 vague and ambiguous language as to foreign nationals being deported vs. found 16 suitable for release on parole.

17 PRAYER/RELIEF REQUESTED

18 1). Order Respondents to show cause why Petitioner is not entitled to the 19 relief requested:

20 2). Conduct an evidentiary hearing to determine a term of imprisonment
 21 proportionate to Petitioner's individual offense under the equal protection claim:

22 3). Order/direct the Board to set a date (immutable deportation date)
 23 consistent with Petitioner's MEPD, which has already lapsed, as was established
 24 by Legislative intent of P.C. §3041(a)(b), which cannot be applied to Petitioner:

25 4). Order that the Board does not have the authority to "parole" or even 26 to "consider suitability for parole", of a foreign national that has an INS hold 27 "or" will be deported, under P.C. §3041(a)(b):

28 5). Order that the Board can "only" find Petitioner releasable for

1 deportation under §3041(a)'s MEPD, as (b) cannot be applied:

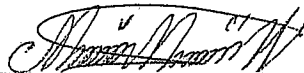

2 6). Order that the Board cannot deny deportation of a foreign national (or 3 even parole for an american citizen) based on him not having employment, further 4 education, proof of job offers and ability to earn a living in Guatemala, "or"
5 parole plans in California or elsewhere, under the criteria established in P.C.
6 §3041(a)(b) as the Matrix was unconstitutionally enacted:

7 7). Order that the Board must find foreign nationals suitable for deportation
8 at their "first hearing" because P.C. §3041(a)(b)'s vague and ambiguous language 9 of unsuitability, danger to the public, do not apply outside of the borders of 10 California or the United States due to the fact that California Penal Codes only 11 have authority within California:

12 8). Grant Petitioner, and other similarly situated foreign nationals, such 13 other relief as this Court deems just and proper in the interest of justice.
